The church was constructed during the nineteenth century, (1878) a period in history when architectural edifices were marked by the battle of European styles. i.e. Classic, Gothic, and Renaissance. Eclecticism, as the battle of styles came to be called, characterizes the style of Dexter Avenue Baptist Church.

The simple rectangular plan with the geometrically ymmetrical openings, including doors and windows, bell tower and massive steps is indicative of the late English Renaissance. Contrary to the basic building form, the low gable roof with its decorative triangular pediment hung from the front edge of the roof line and extending across the front face of the building to its extremities is Classic in design. The use of keystones above the windows is another reflection of Classicism. Large narrow window openings, pointed arches and inlaid glass are typical Gothic characteristics.

Dr. Martin Luther King is most easily remembered for his leadership of the Montgomery Improvement Association (MIA) and later, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. The Dexter Avenue Baptist Church was closely involved with Dr. King's activities and those of the MIA.

Dr. King came to the capital city of Alabama in 1954. He had been "called" to the pastorate of the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church. The Dexter Congregation numbered about 600 members and it included most of the black intellectuals of the community—especially those associated with Alabama State College.

In December of 1955, Mrs. Rosa Parks refused to give up her seat to a white passenger and move to the back of one of the Montgomery city buses. She was summarily arrested. The anger of the black community and their determination "not to let this pass" was so strong that an organization was formed to fight bus segregation. Black community leaders and hundreds of others crowded into the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church for an important meeting. E.D. Nixon, a labor leader, was most active in calling together the city's black civic leaders and initiating the subsequent bus boycott. Reverend Ralph David Abernathy named the organization the Montgomery Improvement Association and nominated Dr. King as its president.

As president of the MIA, Dr. King was responsible for organizing the black community in support of the boycott. He held mass meetings, many of them in the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church, to encourage blacks to resist riding the buses and arranged voluntary motor pools that almost immediately became more efficient than the bus system of the city. Whites were outraged at this evidence of a unified black power force and reacted violently against it. The Montgomery Mayor and his subordinates publicly joined the White Citizens Council. Dr. Kings home was bombed. Many black boycotters lost their jobs in reprisal for their stand.

#8. SIGNIFICANCE

Finally the frustrated local authorities found an old city ordinance of the 1920s that prohibited the boycotting of a business that resulted in diminishing or destroying that business' income. Despite Dr. King's arrest and continued harassment by whites, blacks continued their boycott for 381 days. The boycott ended December 21, 1956 with a Supreme Court decision that held bus segregation illegal.

It has often been said that Dr. King's success as a black leader in the south was the result of his ability to fuse with mass movements and direct confrontation of unjust authority, the link which had sustained the black man since slavery—the black church. Dexter Avenue Baptist Church provided one such link.
